‘Cosmologies’

Saturday 6-Sunday 7 June 2009
At the Bath Royal Scientific and Literary Institute
16-19 Queen Square, Bath BA1 2HN

This year's Sophia Centre conference is held in Bath, as in previous years, in the elegant surroundings of the Bath Royal Scientific and Literary Institution. The question which the Sophia Centre addresses is 'how do we human beings relate to the cosmos?' This year's speakers address this problem from a variety of perspectives. We invite you to join us.

Speakers will include (subject to alteration):

Ronald Hutton (University of Bristol), Peter Forshaw (University of Cambridge), Martin Gansten (Lund University), Jane Ridder-Patrick (University of Edinburgh), Elizabeth Reichell (University of Wales, Lampeter), Lionel Sims (University of East London), Pauline Bambrey (University of Wales, Lampeter), Glenford Bishop (University of Wales, Lampeter), Martin Wells (University of Wales, Lampeter), Frances Clynes (University of Wales, Lampeter), Sasha Stephens (University of East London) ~ See www.lamp.ac.uk/sophia/events for programme updates.

£30 to attend one day / £45 to attend both days
(includes vegetarian lunch and refreshments)

Please send the booking form below together with payment to: Dr Nick Campion, Sophia Conference, Sophia Centre, Department of Archaeology and Anthropology, University of Wales, Lampeter, Ceredigion, Wales, SA48 7ED, UK, or email enquiries to n.campion@lamp.ac.uk

Advance booking is required as spaces are limited. The programme is subject to alteration, every effort will be made to notify attendees of any changes in advance.
